bar-keeper. He called for a scuple of "het whicky skins," and the mement the glasses were laid upon the counter l'audeen snatched them up and dashed tue scalding contents into the face and oyes of the unoffending bar-keeper injuring him severaly. Paudeen was principally notorious for his agency in the murder of Bill Poole some years ago. On that occasion, in company with Lewis Baker and Turner, he went to Stanwix Hall and began the assault on Poole which ended in his death. For that offense he was in ficted; but on the failure to convict Baker the indictment was quashed. Three months before the death of Peole he attempted to take Tom Hyer's life, by shooting at him in Dick Pistt's saleon. In 1852 he left for California, but on the way thither having com mitted a savage assault upon a passenger he was ob liged to secrete himself on the steamer, and subsequently to hide at Panarua to escape the vengeance of the other passengers. He stopped at Panama, in company with a man named Lump Lee, who was shortly afterward engaged in a burgiary upon the house of a priest, from which $30,000 worth of property was stolen. Lee and a native were taken; the others escaped. Lee was transported to Carthagena, and Pandeen, after a career of nine months at Panama, in Receing Californians, made the place so hot that he was compelled to fly to this city. Here is said to have been concerned in certain notorious robberies. About the time of his assault upon Hyer, he attacked a man named Aller, in a porter-house called "The Senate." and bit off a portion of his under lip. In January of the same year he attacked Jim Hughes, while in Johnny Ling's gambling house, putting a pistol to his breast, and daring him to fight. Hughes stuck a heavy hunting-knife into his shoulder, in reply, and would have killed him had not Lewis Baker interfered.

Paudeen is a most unmitigated ruffian, gambler and black-leg, and no small volume would suffice to show his career of crime.

Coroner Gamble called to see Paudeen, and if neces sary take his ante-mortem examination, but the vio tim declined making any statement, saying, on the occasion of such visit, that there were plenty of witnesses who could testify that Cunningham shot him down without provocation.

THE PRISONER.

Daniel Cunningham, alias Daddy Cunningham, is recognized among the "fancy" as a "light weight." He is eaid to be a black-hearted villain, and would have little or no hesitation in taking the life of an enemy when his temper was thoroughly aroused. He has been in the habit of carrying weapons for years past, and would use them with impunity upon failing to accomplish his act of ruffianism otherwise. On more than one occasion he has cut his antagenists right and left, drawing his wespons upon very slight provocation. Cunningham is about 26 years of age, and weighs only 90 or 100 pounds.

The story, as related by Cunningham, is as follows: Cunningham went into the rum-shop and dance-house kept by Butt Allen, at No. 23 Howard street, in company with some friends, about 121 o'clock on Friday night. Cunningham danced and firted with the girls some hours. He saw Paudeen there, but, being at enmity with him, did not take any notice of him. About 3 o'clock on Saturday morning Paudeen and Cunningham met in the bar-room at Allen's. Paudeen com-menced talking about John Morrissey in a very disparaging and abusive manner; Cunningham, who is a warm friend of Morrissey, told him he had better reserve his abuse until Morrissey should be present. Paudeen, instead of moderating his speech, became still more violent in his language, and added that he could lick any friend of Morrissey's. This style of conversation continued for some time, with increasing warmth and violence, when Paudeen at length ad vanced toward Cunningham as though he would take hold of bim. Cupningham, who is physically a little fellow, but in temper one of the most vicious and vindictive of his class, warned him, "Keep away from me;" "keep away from me; I am not able to fight "you; but if you touch me I shall hurt you;" at the same time retreating from him. Paudeen caught hold of him, but the bystanders interfered and separated them, without a blow. Paudeen then said, " I il meet "you to-morrow, and slap your face for you." Cunningham said, "I guess you won't;" Pandeen ex-claimed, "Godd-n you, I'll slap it now." Canningham tried to get around behind the bar, and partiall, succeeded, when Paudeen reached over and took him by the collar. Cunningham became frightfully enraged, and screamed out, "Let go of me, or I shall kill you." This he repeated three times. Paudeen still maintained his hold, but no blows were struck. At the third warning Cunningham drew a pistol from his breast, and shot Paudeen in the upper part of the breast. Paudeen relaxed his hold, and fell cursing and groaning to the floor.

Last evening Paudeen was still alive, though very feeble. There is a bare possibility that he may rebut the chances are greatly against such a SHOOTING MATCH IN WALL STREET BETWEEN LAWYERS.

On Saturday afternoon Frank G. Q. Umstead, a lawyer doing business at No. 14 Wall street, was arrested and taken before Justice Connolly, at the Lower Police Court, charged with attempting to kill Wm. H. Barnes by shooting him with a pistol. The complainant, William H. Barnes, is also an attorney, residing at No. 60 West Ninth street, and has an office at No. 61 Wall street. The following are the facts, as set forth in the affidavit: About 10 o'clock on Saturday morning Mr. Barnes called at the office of his friend, D. C. Ringland, at No. 16 Wall street. After remaining a few moments he started out, pre-ceded by Mr. Ringland. As they were going down stairs he saw a person (whom he was a moment afterward informed was Frank Umstead; coming over the bannister at the right of him. Immediately he heard the report of firearms, and felt a concussion of the air, and heard a whizzing close to his right car. Umstead was surrounded by smoke, and was in the act of putting a pistol into his pocket. Mr. Barnes ran down stairs, and upon inquiry Mr. Ringland informed him of the rame of the accused.

HUMAN REMAINS FOUND IN BAGS.

INVESTIGATION BY CORONER BENNETT. On Saturday morning last a rag-picker discovered several eacks lying on the beach at the foot of Tuirtieth street, Gowanus, and on opening them found the mutilated remains of a human being. He informed Sergeant McLane, of the Eighth Ward Police, who took possession of the sacks, and notified Coroner Bennett. The Coroner, with Dr. Prince, proceeded to examine the different portions of the body, with the view to discover whether it had been the subject of the dissecting table, or was the body of a murdered man. The head, upper portions of the body and intestines were contained in a bag upon which the name "Dr. Bauer" was painted. The extremities and lower portions of the body were contained in two bags, which lay about 200 feet from the first. The skull bore evi dences of trepanning in several places, and the legs looked as if they had been operated upon with a view to find the femoral artery. Some of the operations were skillfully made, while others were bungled, as if done by a novice. Amputations and other operations had been performed by some one accustomed to surgical operations. The exterior of the sacks was clean, but wet, as if subjected to the action of the water.

Coroner Bennett impanueled a jury, and proceeded to investigate the case. Dr. Prince testified to having made an examination of the body, or portions of it and thought that there were indications of operation having been performed upon it by some skillful person as the trepanning, &c., but on the legs as if by novice. He shought that it might be a subject from e dissecting room; noticed no wounds which would lead him to suppose that they had been inflicted before

The Jury then examined the can on one of the sacks, and found it to be that of Dr. Ba ter, who kept as office on the corner of Court and Ba tic streets The inquest was then adjourned natil yesterds," more ing, when Dr. Campbell, House-Surgeon of Ballston Hospital was examined. He stated that he was acquainted with Dr. Bauer, but knew of no subject being given to him at any time; knew of no dead body being taken from the Hospital and given to Dr. Bauer or anybody sise; since the Act of April, 1855, called the "Austomy Bill," requisitions had been made for bodies by playsicians for the purpose of dissection; the person so ap plying for them is required to treat the body as the less breets, with regard to its interment; the surgeons of the Hospital have nothing to do with these bodies as that is the warden's special charge; if the deceased has do friends, the remains are disposed of as the warden sees fit: do not know what the law of 1855 requires, but have understood that when the body was no longer required for scientific purposes it should be decently interred, and not thrown about carelessly; the name of the warden is Timothy Daley; physicians in the Hospital have no control over the body after it is removed from the ward in which the patient dies; it is then removed to the Dead-House, and afterward disposed of as the warden directs; there is a record kept of the names of the patients who die, and of the physicians who take the bodies for dissection when they are so disposed of.

Louis Bauer, M. D., was examined without oath, and stated that he was one of the surgeons of the Long Island Hospital, at No. 145 Court street. He had long been desirous of procuring the bodies of persons who had died in the public institutions, for the purpose of dissection and scientific experiments. He requested a medical friend to procure one of those bodies, and about fourteen days since was furnished with a subject. Another medical man and a student in witness's office several times afterward performed various sargi-cal operations on the body. When the warm weather commenced it was made necessary to remove the re-mains, and witness directed one of his assistants and a student to take the box containing the remains to a spot as near as possible to Greenwood Cemetery and there inter them decently. Witness was prevented by business from attending to the execution of his orders. and did not know but what they had bees complied with strictly. On Saturday morning he was informed that instead of complying with his instructions they had disposed of the remains in the manner they were found, supposing that the flow of the tide would carry them out to sea; that they had taken the remains out of the box in order to transport them the more readily. He regretted very much that the affair had occurred. When the body was received at his office it bore evidences of having been subjected to a postmortem examination, and the lungs were much congested, showing that the patient had died from disease of the lungs. Witness declined to disclose the name of the person who furnished the body, or those of his assistants, as he considered himself the only responsible party, and was willing to suffer the penalty of his acts. The body was removed from his office about 9 or 9) o'clock on Friday night.

Dr. John Byrne, Physician to the Long Island College Hospital, was also examined without oath. The body was procured from Dr. Johnson, residing in Middagh street; saw the body the day after it was brought to the hospital in Brooklyn, and it bore evidence of a post-mortem examination previous to being taken to

Dr. Johnson stated that he procured the body from Bellevue Hospital in New-York under provisions of the Anatomy bill. Dr. Johnson, having been for some time connected with the Hospital at Bellevue, was selected to procure the body. The body had never been a patient in our Hospital. Witness corroborated the statement of Dr. Bauer as to the operations on the

Dr. Benno Gabriel, assistant to Dr. Bauer, likewise testified without oath that he knew of the body being n the dissecting room of the Long Island College Hospital for some two weeks, during which time he assisted in making several surgical operations on the body. Dr. Bauer told witness on Friday to bury the body in the box which contained it at some place near the Greenwood Cemetery. The Doctor being engaged in the evening, witness did not have an opportunity to ask further instructions, and, the box being too heavy to lift into the wagon, he put the body into thre sacks, and, putting the sacks into the wagon, started off to dispose of them. While he was engaged in putting the bags into the wagon, he became alarmed. from the fact that some young men observed him. Witness and a student of Dr. Bauer then got into the wagon, and drove down to Gowanus, and, when near the place where the sacks were found, threw them, as they supposed, far enough into the water to give them a chance to float out with the tide and sink. They took no implements with them with which to dig a grave. The inquest was then adjourned until 3 o'clock to day, for the purpose of examining Dr. Johnson and the steward of the Hospital at Bellevue. The "Act to Promote Medical Science," passed April 1, 1854, imposes a penalty of from $25 to $50 for neglecting to inter the remains of a human body in some public cemetery. DESCENT UPON A GAMBLING HELL.

FOURTEEN NOTORIOUS CHARACTERS AR-

RESTED-ESCAPE OF TEN OF THEM. At a late hour Saturday night, Sergeant Lefferts and is squad of detectives, made a descent upon the notorious gambling hell No. 372 Canal street, kept by John Miller. This place has long been known as a resort for the lowest class of gamblers, thieves, burgare and other notorious characters. The police en tered in a body, and apprehended John Miller, the proprietor; Edward Brown, George Johnson, Thomas McCay alias Sullivan, John Casen, George Carey, Mathew Conklin, Franklin Dalmar, Charles Coles, Robert Jones, James Bluff, John Murphy, John Smith and John Shaw alias Miller. The place was locked up and the prisoners conveyed to the Fifth Precinct Police Station-House in Leonard street, where they were consigned to the cells.

The detectives then returned to the house in Cana street and upon searching the premises found a large number of elegantly finished burglars' tools in good order, and apparently arranged for use, a quantity of gambling apparatus, & c.

A few minutes before 12 o'clock the doorman at the Station-House repaired to the dorinitory to call the men who were to turn out upon the second tour, and it appears that during his absence Johnny Miller and two others of the prisoners in the same cell with him managed in some manner or other to unscrew the lock rom the cell door and thus release themselves. Havng got upon the floor between the range of cells, Miller picked up a heavy bar of iron, sharpened at one end, sed for raking out the stove, and with it forced open the doors of the cells in which his companions were the whole number having been placed in four cells. The locks, which, by the way, were rather poor ones, were wrenched from their fastenings, and the doors (o iron) somewhat broken. This maneuver being succossfully accomplished, the prisoners started in a body up stairs, and having reached the door opening into the office, opened it very cautionaly, and then started at the utmost of their speed for the street.

Deputy Carpenter was sitting at the time in the back-room with Capt. Hutchings, and several of the men being attracted by the noise, which they at the moment thought occurred from a row in the street hastezed into the office just in time to catch Brown and Casey, these two having the luck to be the luck Several of the men now coming down, chase was given to the fagitives, but allescaped except Smith and Shaw, who were overhauled by two Sixth Precint Officers and locked up in the Sixth Precinct Station-House, Notice of the cecape was given to the detective force, who mony, and thought that the body might have been in facthwith commenced, and are still engaged in search.

THE HAUL OF GAMBLERS IN LISPENARD STREET

The parties arrested on Friday might by Sergt. Croft and squad at the gambing crib of Theodore Edgar. No. 56 Lispenard street, eleven in sumber, were or Saturday morning arraigned before the Mayor in the equad room, City Hall. Four of the prisoners turned out to have been spectators drawn into the place by enriosity, and they were discharged with a reprimand. The worst of the crowd had escaped. Wir. Taylor James Sawyer, David Rodgers, Geo. Johnson, Thos. C. Wiley, Samuel Deyermand and Henry Reed were known to be regular gambiers, and they were each held in $1,000 bail for trial, except Reed, who, in consequence of having recently been a State Prison bird, was held in $2,000.

None of them were ready with ball, and they were sent to the Tombe and locked up. The above establishment had long been known as the worst gambling hell in the city. During Fernando Wood's brief period of reform his officers attacked it three times, and were each time driven off by the desperate characters by which it was frequented. The officers with Sergeant Croft, were Black, Blackwell, Debois, Olden, Clerke, Cholwell, Baldwin, and Armstrong. They are deserving of much praise for their boldness and good management in breaking up these vile dens. Officer Black was the only one injured. He received a severe black eve, by a blow from a chair in the hands of one of the desperadoes. Sergeant Croft, who is one of the most resolute officers in the department, had a narrowescape from being stabbed. It is surprising that there was not some blood shed.

The keeper, Edgar, was among those who got away. He, however, appeared at the Fifth Precinct Station on Saturday, and offered to give himself up on condition that the other prisoners would be released. Notwithstanding this cool proposition, the officers in charge of the Station let him leave. A warrant was issued by the Mayor, and Edgar was arrested in Broadway yesterday afternoon by Officer Nesbirt of the Fifth Precinct. At the time of the descent upon his house, he managed to elude the police, and, aware that a warrant for his arrest had been issued, he kept out of the way. On the way to the Police-Station, Edgar abused the policemen, calling him all sorts of vile names. Upon being searched at the Station-House, there was found in his pockets a greasy and well-thumped pack of cards, a gold watch and various other small articles, together with $21 80 in bank bills. The accused will be taken before the Mayor this morning.

COMMUTATION OF O'CONNELL'S PUNISHMENT. Gev. King has commuted the punishment of Maurice O'Counell, now under sectence of death, for the murder of Teresa Spitzlein, to imprisonment for life. O'Connell was the youngest and least guilty of the parties implicated. The commutation was asked for by the twelve jurors who rendered the verdict of guilty. O'Connell's associates were convicted of manslaughter, and sentenced to the State Prison for a term of years. Such would have been the result in his case, but that, unfortunately for him, his fliends prevailed upon his counsel to withdraw the plea of manslaughter, hoping to escape a conviction for murder.

THE BROOKLYN FERRIES.-The report of the As 1 semply Committee upon petitions and acts in relation to the farries between this city and Brooklyn contains the re-ult of an investigation into all matters bearing upon the subject. The Committee first settled to their satisfaction two important preliminary questions: 1. That the City of New York possesses the right to establish and maintain all ferries from Manhattan Island to any of the opposite shores. 2. That the right to recent be rates of fare, or ferriage, and to make general regulations for ferries, was separated and has always remained distinct from the right to establish and main tain ferries, and has been reserved for and exercised by the Legislative authorities, both of the Colony and State of New York. Next, attention was devoted to an examination of the incomes and expenses of the several ferries to be affected by the proposed law. Incidentally, many interesting facts were elicited. There are now running between New-York and Long falsed fourteen steam and two row-boat ferries of Incidentally, many interesting facts were elicited. There are now running between New-York and Long feland fourteen steam and two row-boat ferries, of which the expenses and receipts for a series of years are given; also, the amount of their assets.

The Union Ferries.—The organization of the Union Ferry Oompany took place in the year 1833, by combining the seven ferries between New-York and Biroslyn existing at that time. Three of the ferries—the Fulten, South and Hamilton—run by one company, had been earning seven per cent on their capital, and the surplus still increased. The other four ferries, it is said, were unprofitable; but, subsequently, by uniting the fortunes of the whole, the latter were maintained at the expense of the former. After noticing the various changes in fare, which took place during a series of years, the Committee proceed to give the receipts and expenses for each ferry for several years.

The report concluded as follows:

"The windom of uniting all there ferries under one management and rate of farc is, as your Committee are aware, a subject of much question among residents of Brocklyn. That the union was made in good faith on the part of the old Union Ferry Company, and with the hope, at least, of maintaining a one cent fare on all of them, cannot be questioned; but whether the principle of taxing the patrons of one ferry for the approt of another, and particularly the taxing them not only to pay the expenses but also to pay a profit upon unprefitable ferries, is or is not right, your Committee submit without the expression of an opinion. That the amount of an 5 per cent or any other dividend upon the stock or property of a terry which has been distontinued, should not be made a tax upon other ferries, is self-evident. This course, however, seems to have been pursued in regard to the Gouverneur street ferry.

The conclusion to which your Committee arrive, in regard to the bill and petitions—which include those from 1,200 or 1,500 persons, taken from the files of the last Legislature—and in regard, generally, to the reg-

with the Legislature, are:
First: That, while they all recognize the broad First: That, while they all recognize the broad principle that public ferrics are public necessines, and that the people are entitled to the lowest possible rates of fare upon them, consistent with convenience and safety, and a reasonable profit to their managers, a majority of them are apprehensive that the radical change in the method of fixing the rates of fare, and in separating each ferry from all others, so far as its business is concerned, contemplated by the provisions of the bill, might prove injurious, though perhaps not conjust to some portions of the community, in the unjustly, to some portions of the community, in the vicinity of the ferries to be affected, and therefore the Committee do not recommend its passage without Committee do not recommend its passage wands amendment.

Second: That a strong necessity does exist for the passage of some law, which shall be in effect, a condensation of those now on the statute book, with such amendments as shall make them conform to the necesities and usages of the present day.

Third: That detailed statements of the business of each farry should be made annually, and filed so as to be accessible to the public, as well for their information as for the guidance of persons who may wish to each ferry should be made annually, and filed so as to be accessible to the public, as well for their information as for the guidance of persons who may wish to compete at the auctionsales of ferry franchises already provided by law.

Fourth: That one object and aim of legislation in regard to ferries, should be to prevent, rather than foster, such extensive combinations of ferries as create monopolies, in fact, which have no existence in law.

Your Committee have amended the bill submitted to them, to conform to these views and conclusions, and, so amended, they recommend its passage.
